

GORILLA BREAKS OUT OF ZOO AND ATTACKS ELDERLY PEDESTRIAN WITH BARRELS MAN FIGHTS BACK WITH SLEDGEHAMMER

In other news: Woman gives birth to calcified baby

*We Love Apes department

Writer: Fatz Geronimo

Witness claims the gorilla broke into a construction site and crawled to the top before hopping up and down, damaging the girders. The gorilla also kidnapped a woman off the street and took her to the top of the construction site. The man that the gorilla attacked suffered mild head injuries and threw out his back whilst swinging the sledgehammer. He is currently hospitalized in Columbus medical center. Doctors say he will make a quick recovery in a few weeks. As for the gorilla, Columbus Zoo will put it down on Wednesday

FUNGUS OUTBREAK IN NORTHERN OHIO

Northern Ohio has been facing an invasion of small fungi that are spreading south. These fungi, known as 'Fleshrooms,' have the ability to break down human flesh. Biologists warn citizens to stay alert. They are not known to prey on humans, but citizens are prohibited from approaching this species. There have been 14 injuries in the past week and one zombification. It is strongly advised to avoid damp areas that are densely populated by vegetation. Yart Hoogler, a Biologist from Ohio University, claims the fungus invasion is due to large amounts of nuclear waste to lower Lake Erie from a nearby power plant that pumps nearly 500 gallons of nuclear waste into the Iconic American lake on a daily basis. Biologists also suspect that new mutated species in the Lake Erie marshlands are on the rise.

PET PRODUCERS RISE IN POPULARITY

Trending Today: Producers as Pets?

Writer: Brent Waterson

Producers, which are often seen as irritating pests, leaving unsightly trails of gurt in your yard and clogging ventilation systems, have made a surprising occurrence in a new place: Around the house! People all over Ohio are adopting producers and keeping them as pets, enjoying their surprisingly docile personality and their low-maintenance nature. “Producers are social creatures, and like being around humans, especially children”. “They have a similar behavior to a house cat, minus their love of groaning at night, digging through walls, and siphoning gurt out of their bodies.” (Barbera Stafford, a biologist from Amherst, Ohio) Though producers have not yet reached pet shop popularity, there are many local breeders you can buy your gooey friend from, like the iconic Creatures Co. Taking care of a producer is quite simple, and they will eat just about anything, from dog food to orange peels. As long as you clean their gurt piles weekly and keep them in a bullet-proof glass terrarium at night, you and your producer will both be happy.

WOMAN GIVES BIRTH TO CALCIFIED BABY

*Igneous Infants department

Writer: Anita Bathe

This week one Cleveland Woman by the name of Cathy Brambleton gave birth to a calcified baby after 18 years of it's due birth. The doctors opted to remove the baby after sadly dying before birth, but Cathy refused because she “couldn't bear to see the sight.” We do not know which one is worse! (Pictured on the right.) This heavy stone was carried by the woman for over 18 years, reaching adulthood in the womb. However, this is not a unique case. Lithopedion is a rare phenomenon which occurs most commonly when a fetus dies during pregnancy and is too large to be reabsorbed by the body. As a result, it calcifies on the outside, a foreign body reaction shielding the mother's body from the dead tissue of the fetus and preventing infection. Lithopedia may occur from 14 weeks gestation to full term. It is not unusual for a stone baby to remain undiagnosed for decades and to be found well after natural menopause; diagnosis often happens when the patient is examined for other conditions that require being subjected to an X-ray study. A review of 128 cases by T.S.P. Tien found that the mean age of women with lithopedion was 55 years at the time of diagnosis, with the oldest being 100 years old. The lithopedion was carried for an average of 22 years, and in several cases, the women became pregnant a second time and gave birth to children without incident. Nine of the reviewed cases had carried lithopedion for over 50 years before diagnosis.

5 EASY AND EFFECTIVE METHODS TO WARDING YELLOW-BELLIED GREASEMONGERS FROM YOUR GARDEN

*Slime Time department

Writer: Shepard Greene

The yellow-bellied greasemonger (Flavopestis humidum) can be a serious pest to gardens in rural Ohio. Their habit of chewing stems and eating at roots makes them a nuisance for many farmers and gardeners across the state. Their problematic nature is increased even more due to their resistance to pesticides and fast reproduction rate, which can make them extremely challenging to exterminate. Luckily, we found 5 effective and simple techniques to get rid of these slimy menaces.

1. Rock salt

Spreading rock salt across your lawn is one of the most efficient ways to keep yellow-bellied greasemongers away from your plants. Greasemongers have extremely sensitive skin, and contact with salt can give them a painful shock, which makes them avoid invading your garden.

2. Cayenne Pepper

Sprinkling Cayenne pepper around your crops will deter the yellow-bellied greasemongers from eating the crops. Although this is not an effective method to getting rid of the pests completely, it is a good way to prevent them from demolishing your plants.

3. Bring out the heavy metal

Greasemongers have weak vision and sense of smell, and mostly rely on hearing the world around them to function. Because of this, greasemongers have sensitive ears adapted to hearing the slightest of sounds. Play your favorite rock songs at full volume outside, and greasemongers will be sure to stay away from your area. (Just make sure your neighbors are okay with it first.)

4. Axe Body Spray®

Spraying Axe Body Spray® over your crops about twice a week is one of the easiest ways to scare off a greasemonger. The pungent smell of men will quickly send them scurrying away from your property in fear.

5. Land mines

Though this way may be quite destructive, transforming your lawn into a minefield is a surefire way of removing pesky greasemongers. As long as you have the money to fix the destroyed property, you will be just fine. This also makes quite a greasy mess.

DRUG-CRAZED LUNATIC BREAKS INTO FAMILY HOME AND SHAVES HOUSE CAT

FLEES SCENE WITHOUT STEALING ANYTHING

In other news: Logan Coleflesh once again convicted for stealing cookies

*Hairless Housecats Department

Writer: Felix Ferdinand

Drug-crazed insane asylum escapee known as Theodor Felandos broke into a family home in Colombus yesterday. Sources say the man abused many drugs such as Fun Dip®. He entered the home through the back screen door after cutting it open with a tooth that he ripped out of his mouth. (Investigators found the tooth in a puddle of blood on the floor of the kitchen. The man gave the cat 269 grams of catnip, and the cat is still experiencing major withdrawals.

“Now we’ll have to change Mr. Fluffy Mitten’s name!”

On Wednesday, six fetal humpback whales were found in the basement of a seemingly normal woman. Evidence of red dye 41 were found in their Gastrointestinal tract. The thirty-seven-year-old woman claims to having no knowledge of the large fetuses being in her basement, although her saliva DNA was recovered from the humpback whale’s lifeless eyeball. The woman (who wished to stay anonymous.) was sent to jail for animal abuse, and grand theft mammal. Marie Andreas was put on bail for $69,420.69.

Editor’s note: Sorry, we forgot that she wanted to stay anonymous.

LOGAN COLEFLESH CONVICTED OF PASTRY THEFT

*Take the Cake department

Writer: Beatrice Bitterswigletz

Logan Coleflesh (Tohickon Middle School 8th grade student) was convicted for stealing a cookie from the lunchroom. The crime was carried out Yesterday at the Tohickon lunchroom. The court session was held in Pennsylvania. The judge who pronounced Logan guilty was Brayden A. Logan's lawyer, Bradly, lost the trial and was fired by Logan. The cookie stolen was a Otis Spunkmeyer 2.00 oz (57 g) chocolate chip cookie that came from a pack of individually quick frozen, pre-portioned cookie dough pucks. Some additional specs can be seen below:
Individually quick frozen, pre-portioned cookie dough pucks. Each dough puck weighs 2 oz (57 g) and bakes up into one cookie with chocolate chips and confectionery chips dispersed throughout. Distributed frozen, ready to be baked before serving. Logan was sentenced to twelve hours of community service, and giving all of his video games to Evan E. any additional information about the case has not been disclosed yet.

GIGGLES THE DANCING BEAR MOSCOW TOUR

*Bears from Borovsk Department

Writer: Chastnopredprinimatelskiy
Chelovekonenavistnichestvo

After six long months, the heavily awaited "Giggles: a new era" tour tickets are now available for Giggles the Dancing Bear's brand-new tour through Moscow, Russia. The tickets will be going on sale in one week for 25 cents off! We cannot wait to see Giggles on tour once again after his wildly successful "Pazazz Bear" tour. (The promotional poster is pictured on the left)
Here is a botched Russian translation:
Спустя полгода долгожданные билеты на тур "Giggles: A New Era" в рамках нового тура Giggles the Dancing Bear в Москве, Россия. Билет поступит в продажу через неделю со скидкой 25 центов! Мы не можем дождаться, чтобы снова увидеть Giggles в туре после их успешного тура "Pazazz Bear". (Слева плакат с рекламным сообщением)

EVIDENCE FOUND THAT AI GENERATES REALITY!

6 PIECES OF DAMNING EVIDENCE!

*Artificial Nonintelligence department

Writer: Roberto Gonzalez

AI is definitely useful and is one of the best things ever. Of course, we use AI to does most of then works for his newspaper articles. However, we have 5 pieces of damning pieces of evidence, (WITH FULL COLOR PICTURES) that AI has the capability to generate the reality that we once believed existed based on pure nature.

1. AI generated rubber glove!

This glove was spotted by a doctor after testing with glow in the dark paint. He claims that his hand has never looked like this before.

2. AI generated group of people

This picture was taken in 1969 by some person. The group of people have faces that do not look quite right.

3. AI generated horse

This horse was spotted in Toledo. It was caught flying around circling a bunch of rotten meat. Little is known about this odd horse.

4. AI generated duck duck goose cult

These ducks were seen off a highway in Zanesville. They seem to be playing DDG.

5. AI generated soldier

This soldier was seen at a military base wearing armor comprised of a mixture between human and horse teeth.

6. AI generated toilet deer

This skibidi toilet deer was seen by a tickler spotter while going to the porta-john to take a shine. He had to picturize the sight.

Columbus Chronicle

4,269 HOSPITALIZED AND 132 DEAD AFTER ANNUAL CINCINNATI BRICK-DROPPING FESTIVAL SPECIALISTS BELIEVE THAT EVIL SPIRITS ARE THE CUPLRIT

In other news: Seven children go missing after Chucklenuts the Clown sighting

*Bricks and Giggles Department

Writer: Gregory Manzana

Hospitals pack with injured citizens once again after Cincinnatti's annual Brick-Dropping Festival yesterday. Instead of hearing the majestic thump of bricks on asphalt, which the holiday is known for, the city heard the wail of ambulances and screaming. Many people suffered concussions, broken bones, and wounds, which nobody deserves on such a special day. Although there are a few absurd theories about the dropped bricks injuring people, scientists claim them to be false, and that the true cause is evil spirits trying to spoil the holiday.

“I DROPPED ONE BRICK AND NOW THE SIDEWALK IS COVERED IN BLOOD!”

Exclusive interview with Cincinnati mayor Aftab Pureval

- What are your thoughts on this?
- I think it is devastating.
- What do you think caused this all?
- It must be evil spirits.
- That concludes our interview.

HOWLER POPULATION EXPLODES- TICKLER CULT SPOTTED

*Tickler my fancy department

Writer: Niklaus Greer

There's nothing like that uncomfortable feeling when you watch

PONTIAC ROBOTICS ARCHIVE
Pontiac Robotics Season
Finale coming soon!

The species of Tickler called the "Howler" (Tickleous Clammatus) has seen a recent spike in population recently. Six of these ticklers were spotted on the highway in Colombus on Tuesday and the person who claimed to have seen the sight described them as "Standing in a tight circle, chanting and moving their heads up and down." This is peculiar behavior for the Howlers seeing as they are usually a quite reserved and self-sufficient species. Tickler specialists are looking into it. One biologist (A man on the street claiming to be one) said that the rise in population was due to a decrease of Howler-eating funguses commonly known as "Ticklocaine", as it usually drunkens the ticklers to the point of loosing their sense of reality.

7 CHILDREN MISSING AFTER CHUCKLENUTS SIGHTING

*Make sure that your windows' shut department

Writer: Watson Bingoton

Chucklenuts the clown (pictured on the right), has been a notorious convict around the northeast. He has been alive for nearly 106 years, and he still frequently takes parts in crimes ranging from stealing Bazooka Joe's bubble gum to mass murder. Recently, on Wednesday, a police report was filed for 7 children who have gone missing at similar times. The notorious Chucklenuts the clown was the main suspect, as he has a long history of kidnapping children. One of the children who was recovered claimed to use a flaming bowling pin as a weapon while Chucklenuts was attacking the child. This is proven by the bald spot on the upper-left area of Chucklenut's hair. Only 3 of the 7 missing children have been found.

Chucklenuts' Mugshot

5 SUPER ILLEGAL DRUGS THAT HAVE RISEN IN POPULARITY THAT SHOULD BE AVOIDED AT SOME COSTS

*Twit for a Hit department

Writer: Richard Richards

Illegal drugs are experiencing an exponential growth lately... Since the rumors of the laws being passed to ban the importing of babies in Ohio, people are getting antsy. What do they do in times of stress? Well, we do what we Ohioans do best! We all turn to hard drug as an answer. Even little children have been getting their fair share of exposure lately. Although it may be pretty fun, these drugs are very dangerous to the human (and nonhuman) bodies. Especially if overdosed. Anyways, these are 5 super illegal drugs that have risen in popularity!

1. T-berries

Testosterone berries, which were once regarded as a healthy snack to boost your energy, have lately been categorized as drugs due their addictive nature and their drastic effects on human IQ. Carrying T-berries can result in a fine of $2,000 throughout most regions of Ohio, and consuming them can result in a year in jail.

2. Birdseed

Birdseed is usually used among the Berdman community and is also commonly abused by them. Its addictive properties make it hard not to snort the stuff straight off the sidewalk when some old people are giving it away like bad advice! I digress.

3. Woodchips

This less once than common drug was first used by a man named Austin. He brought this generally unknown drug to the masses by dealing it in the boys' bathroom during ELD. It's a bit coarse and the drug is certainly an acquired taste.

4. Catnip

Catnip is extremely dangerous if overdosed. Cats of all kinds tend to indulge in the natural drug as it eases the mind and makes the feline feel fine. Other names for catnip include: 'Meowjuana', 'The Nip', 'Gato Ganga', 'The Purrfect Pinch', and 'Pussycat Pot'. If you hear any of these names floating around, call 420-420-4200.

5. Fun dip®

Fun dip® is the most dangerous drug that ever existed. Just 30 grams of the stuff is enough to kill a Carebara atoma ant*. If you have a slight suspicion that you or anyone you know is in possession of this dangerous drug, contact officials and do not take matters into your own hands. Vigilanty is the 69th most common cause of getting addicted!

*Depending on how you use it

Enough Fun dip® to kill a Carebara atoma ant

Dangerous amount of Gato Ganga

SIX HEAVILY ARMED APES BREAK INTO PARKS NATIONAL BANK AND STEAL MILLIONS

APES STILL NOT FOUND! MONEY STILL NOT RETURNED!

In other news: Illegal Tickler cage fighting in Cincinatti subway system

*We Love Apes department

Writer: Fatz Geronimo

Yesterday six apes were seen breaking into a bank with swords and nun-chucks. They stole nearly four million dollars in a matter of seconds. Nobody batted an eye or called the cops. All of the apes got away and still have not been found or identified. This is a major loss for the city of Mansfield, Ohio and we can only hope that these apes are found and put into custody. We also hope that all that moolah is returned to the bank. Well, some of us just put our savings in a mattress.

On Monday, an illegal Tickler cage fight was discovered in the Cincinatti subway network. When we investigated this interesting activity, we went down the rabbit hole. Or rather the subway hole. Anyway, there are actually over one hundred participants and this illegal tickler cage fighting organization dates back months. The Ticklers were illegally acquired by the directors of the cage fighting organization by capturing them all over Ohio. An interesting Ohio underground find for sure.

FUNNY PAGE

What do you get when you cross
a Tickler and a Squirtcumber?
A Pickler!

Why did the sea-monkey
cross the road?
to get to the other tide!

What is the best body of water to visit on Halloween?
Lake Erie!

PICTURES OF THE WEEK SUBMISSIONS

Clothed moose!

Skeleton pulled over for DUI!

Orangutan in hot tub

Possessed oranges?

Pigs on a joyride

Poker horse!

Watch it now!

PONTIAC ROBOTICS ARCHIVE

"I can't wait to see what antics Sylvester and Meg will get into this time!"

"This is my favorite Analog Horror series!"

"If you are watching anything other than this, you're wasting your time!"

"That no where teeth go!"

THE HARMFUL EFFECTS OF BONELESS MILK

*Bone Home Department.

Writer: Kenzie Parks

The boneless milk craze has swept the state with people claiming that it has health benefits and general misconceptions about the boneless substitute to milk. All of this junk is fake garbage news! Do not listen to these sceptics and idiots who claim that boneless milk is OK to drink! Bone in milk is the best option for nutrients. The bone chunks are rich in calcium and help strengthen your bones! The biggest claim that the “Anti-Bone” community always brings up is the fact that bone in milk is coarse and can hurt your teeth. This is a stupid reason. Just swallow the chunks whole! they’re only about the size of a ping-pong ball!

BOY HAS HEART ATTACK AFTER EATING SAUL’S LACED PIE

*Easy As Pie Department

Writer: Herman Forue

Thursday (National Pi Day), a local student named Stefano was gifted a Tastykake Lemon Pie by Saul. (Of course, the pie was not actually Saul’s. He gave one of Romir’s pies to Stefano.) Anyway, after taking a bite of the pie, Stefano began breathing heavily and twitching. Bystanders looked on in confusion. After a while, Stefano was determined to finish the pie! (He didn’t want to waste food.) But soon, he started having major heart palpitations. Although the disgusting taste of the pie made Stefano want to stop, he kept going. Soon, Stefano sadly had a heart attack and was rushed to the hospital. It was later made evident that the pie that was given to Stefano was laced with harmful drugs, producer gurt, and even a little bit of Saul’s spit. I know, disgusting. Stefano is pressing charges against Saul and so is Romir for pastry theft (A recurring crime in Ohio.)

The Pie in question

OHIO GOVERNMENT BANS SHIPMENT OF BABIES TO THE STATE; THOUSANDS FURIOUS

Illegal baby bootleggers popping up on the border

In other news: Massive squirtcumber found growing in wall of hardware store

*Infant Imports department

Writer: Idone Tnow

Newborn babies are one of the most important resources used in Ohio. Every day, hundreds of them are shipped across the state for their use as biofuel for factories. Ohio citizens have been using this technique for as long as we remember, and never thought of it as inhumane. Babies don't feel pain, right... Apparently, they do. Ohio governor Mike DeWine adopted a new law last Monday that bans importing live babies into the state, after shocking article "Do Babies

Have Feelings?" by Yous Mell was released to the public. The article spoke of the pain the children go through in dark crates before being ground down into fine oil. The article immediately grabbed the attention of scientists and doctors, and many researches and tests actually proved it to be true. The Ohio government quickly banned this law for being animal abuse, and the state now uses regular fossil fuels for power. Even though the children are no longer being harmed, thousands of people across the state are infuriated by the expense of new power sources and are beginning riots against the government. Mike DeWine is likely to cancel this law sometime within the month. Baby population has seen a 400% increase!

MASSIVE SQUIRTCUMBER FOUND GROWING IN WALL OF

*Cucumber Control department

HOME DEPOT

Writer: Otyka Miricoto

Today, A giant squirtcumber (tyranocucus acutis) was unveiled thriving within the walls of a Home Depot in Toledo and was the culprit for the spreading cracks in the walls over the past year. Luckily, technicians are going to be able to safely remove it before it can cause more damage. Though squirtcumber related incidents are quite common in Ohio, this was a unique instance. Most mature squirtcumburs tend to be around 6.9 feet long and 8 feet in diameter, but this one was 8.5 feet long and 10 feet in diameter. This was the 4th squirtcumber related incident this year, most likely due witchcraft.

Here is an interview with Brutus McGus, the manager of the Home Depot. "Thank God we found that sucker. Over the past year we have experienced so many problems with our wall cracking and crumbling, and we weren't able to find out why! Our crew had to spend $420.00 dollars on spackle and repairs in total before we finally hired a technician to do some heavy work and investigation. They expect to be able to exterminate our squirtcumber within the next week or so, and our store may have to be closed for a couple days."

PANDICKLERS ON THE RISE AFTER TICKLER DEPLOYMENT

*War and Grease Department

Writer: Clarissa Cook

After Ohio's deployment of militarian ticklers in China, a mysterious creature known as the 'Pandickler' has seen a spike in population. Reports say that attacking China like the Ticklers were supposed to, they instead hopped into the bamboo forests and bred with local Giant Pandas. This obviously has produced a very mutated cross species. Because the Ticklers failed, the Ohioan Arms Federation (OAF) is synthesizing a new plan of action to take on their biggest foe yet. In addition, the Chinese president, Xi Jinping, even wrote a letter directly to the Ohioan Mayor of Ohio stating "非常感谢您和您的人民为我们提供了这个美味的物种! 由于您的慷慨, 我们的国家是世界上饥饿率最低的国家!" or in English, "Thank you and your people so much for giving us this delicious species! Because of your generosity, our country has the lowest hunger rates in the world! simply embarrassing to the people of Ohio..."

Pandickler

HOMELESS MAN RELEASES ARMY OF FASCIST RATS

*Racist Rodents Department

Writer: Jimmy Sprinkes

On Monday a crazed homeless man released a large militia of marching rodents to terrorize the town. The rats have been causing lots of trouble by crawling into people's cars and chewing through wires, and even breaking windows of local shops. The rats also broke into a cheese factory and ate nearly all the cheese in the large building. The population of these rats are only going up, since they were trained to mate as much as possible. Lots of people have fled the town and some brave citizen stuck around to defend Columbus. Something else that is noteworthy is the sudden spike in the population of snakes.

CHESQUIK PARTNERS WITH CHESTER

*Easy Cheesy Department

Writer: Mohammad Benz

Chester the cheetah reaches out to the Netles company. They create a popular trend, "Chesquik". Chesquik is a mix of boneless milk and 25% cheese. Chester needs more funds because in Ohio due to Cheetos losing popularity. The company claims that it contains 25% more cheese. People are complaining that they should add more cheese. Netles respond with, "Unfortunately, the health department worries about how much cheese we put." People are starting to experiment with the drink and adding more cheese. They are saying "The thicker the milk, the better the drink." All over in the streets of Ohio this drink is selling fast. People are swarming inside the stores searching for this drink. Even bodybuilders are using this drink for protein. Chester gets interviewed on how much funds he gets per week, he claims that it made over a billion dollars. He also states a few minor side effects..

SIDE EFFECTS MAY INCLUDE: VOMITING, NAUSEA, RASHES, HEART ATTACKS, MUSCLE SPASMS, STOMACH CRAMPS, PANIC ATTACKS, DEPRESSION, AND SUICIDAL THOUGHTS.

MAN SLAUGHTERED BY VICIOUS HAMSTER

HAMSTER FLEES IN A SINGLE CAR TIRE

In other news: Resident boneless milk farmer interviewed by The Washington Post

*Tiny Terrorists department

Writer: Skelly McBones

A few days ago, a man's deceased body (who is still unidentified) was found lying in a pool of blood on a sidewalk of his neighborhood. An autopsy of the corpse showed many bite marks, punctured organs, broken bones, and a pair of small animal incisors lodged into his forehead. Later that day, we found shocking footage on his security camera. The film showed a shrieking hamster chasing the frightened man through his doorway, often leaping forward to snap at his legs and back. He finally outran the tiny beast and hid behind his car, only for the hamster to miraculously fall out of the sky and latch onto his face. The hamster clawed and kneaded at the skin of his face, and his screams filled the air. After about 5 minutes, police cars reached the area, but it was too late, and the man was found dead. The police tried to shoot the hamster, but it dodged the bullet and ran towards the police car. The hamster was then seen pulling out a miniature wrench, which it stored in its cheek pouch, de-attaching the tire, and using it as a hamster wheel to make a quick getaway. Multiple searches for the hamster have been conducted, but none were successful yet. Though the cause of this attack is still unknown, scientists speculate that ancient witchcraft tempted the vicious rodent to maul the man.

HEALTH BENEFITS OF EATING TICKLER MEAT -- SEE PAGE 3

4 Fun Things To Do In The Upcoming Farnham Fungus Festival

Much room for
Mushrooms department

By Stinky Mcshcneid

Fungus chewers better be prepared, mushroom mania is coming to town! taking place on april 17th, the fungus festival occur in farnham city, which is located towards the north of the state. From chewing fungus to talking about fungus, there are tons of activities to do while celebrating the history of fungus consumption.

Eat fungus!

By various types of fungi to chow down on! Most fungi are around the cheap price of 20$ apiece!

Buy 9 get 0.5
free!

*Some fungi may be toxic, please give it a quick lick to be sure.

Talk about fungus!

There is tons to talk about when the topic is fungus!
Chat with your friends about your favorite fungus while you give your mouth a nice workout!

Here are some prompts:
“How are your funguses?”
What funguses do you have?”
“Have you gotten poisoned by a fungus lately?”

Think About Fungus!

Thinking about fungus is not only a great way to pass the time, but it can also boost your overall morale! studies show that those who daydream about fungus tend to have higher confidence!

Point at fungus!

Tired of mucking around? do something productive and point at fungus! This will help your pointing skills, and it will also help our fungi become more confident around people.

HEALTH BENEFITS OF EATING TICKLER MEAT

*Mis Steak Department

Writer: Griffin Nolan

Over the past few years, tickler meat has risen in popularity, even replacing regular beef! The muscle matter of ticklers, which have long thought of as filthy, swamp-dwelling vermin, actually have many benefits. The meat is harvested from farms, where free range ticklers (most commonly the forager species) are kept.

1. Boosted Energy

Tickler meat replenishes your energy from the wet ooze. We interviewed a few people who eat tickler meat, and they say, “I've become more alert and more energized throughout the day.” Apparently, the chunks in tickler meat give you that boost that you need.

2. Promotes bone health

Forget the calcium! The copper filaments found within tickler meat provide as an excellent bone strengthener. Studies show that tickler meat consumers tend to have thicker, more fuller bones that can take more force. Just don't mind the coppery taste of wet pennies.

3. Clear Vision

20/20 is very expensive now days from people staring at the sun. However, people that eat tickler meat that wears glasses or contact lenses, are saying that their vision is getting better. The vision department did a study that tested 100 people that eat tickler meat and reported people's vision used to be a 10/20 is now 20/20.

4. Clean Teeth

You would think that you would get stinky breath and dirty teeth. But, due to the copper and sliver filaments in tickler meat, it's abrasive enough to clean your teeth. It's so abrasive that sometimes be used a teeth whitener.

WASHINGTON POST REPORTER INTERVIEWS OHIOAN BONELESS COW PROCESSING RANCH FARMER

GETS WAY MORE INFORMATION THAN HE WANTED...

In other news: Deranged goose man is on the loose again!

*Boneless Bovine department

Writer: Didi Asc

Recently, A well known reporter from the Washington Post came to a local boneless cow ranch to discover how boneless milk was made, and was horrified by what he learned. During his interview he asked many questions, and got more answers than he wanted. "Well da process stards out here, In Dead Cow Heap, Ohio" says farmer Joe shmoe, "where we go through all da cows, picking only da most deranged 'nd sickly looking, we den stretch out 'nd decalcify their cracked and fractured bones. After that, we head over ta a meat processor 'nd beat da bones out of da carcass until it look like a sack of meat, organs 'nd hide. Then to finish the process, and get the cows back alive, we fill them with as much Chernobyl radiation as one can lay their hands on, and that makes the cow start to flop around." The Interveiwer got a unique VIP access tour to the boneless cow milker where he got told that they then get "put in a garbage compactor and have the 'milk' squeezed out of them, they then bleach, deodorize, dye and package it so it doesn't look like bloody goo." The reporter then fell into a nightmarish trance and started babbling strange things, so he was hired as a manager for the ranch. The Washington Post is filing a lawsuit for personal losses and will probably win.

MAN SUES LOOKY LOU FOR PROTON THEFT

*Optical Disillusion Department

On Wednesday, a man walked out of a bookstore with a poetry book about animals. As he was walking down the street, a man by the name of Liam took a quick gander at the paperback that this man had recently acquired. The man took notice of this and accused the man of grand theft light particles. He claimed that the protons of his poetry book had been absorbed by Liam's selfish retinas. The man sued him for 100,000 dollars to cover the emotional damages caused in the incident

ROBBERY AT CRUSTY'S CRAISINS®

MYSTERIOUS CROOK STILL NOT FOUND

*Berry bad crimes department

Writer: Craig Ozzy

Crusty's Craisins-which is well known for supplying the community with their dried cranberries-is facing financial troubles after the robbery last week. The break-in occurred on Thursday, around 4:30 at night. Cameras show a shady figure sneakily breaking through a window, leaping towards the craisins, and chowing down on them like an animal. About ten minutes later, probably when the bandit was full, he barehandedly lugged 53 canisters of craisins back out through the window and disappeared into thin air. Though the robber's identity is still unknown, some strands of blond hair were traced. Detectives also found a strange sack of mangled plastic fork heads, whose purpose is still unknown. Crusty's lost around 68% of their craisin stock, and prices expect to rise as the lost cranberries replenish.

OLD LADY FINDS DRIED UP HORSES IN ATTIC--APPRAISER CLAIMS

*Attic Addicts department THEY'RE WORTH MILLIONS Writer: Freen Feather

On Thursday, an old decaying woman named Gerty Gertrude invited her great great great grandchildren to her flat. They were prowling around her attic when they found six near mint condition dried up horses sitting in the corner. The youngest great great great granddaughter (age 47) took them to an auction house and the appraiser claimed them to be... six of a kind! He said they would go for auction for millions! Later that week the dried-up horses were sold to a group of apes! Lord knows where they got all that money from! No word on what the apes plan to do, but most people speculate 1 horse was given to each of the members of the ape group (being made up of six primates total, it seems to make plausible sense)

CRAZED MAN IN GOOSE COSTUME PROSECTUTED FOR CHASING PEDESTRIANS

*Goose on the Loose department Writer: Clarissa Cook

Yesterday, a crazy man (who was later identified to be named Bill Featherbottom) was charged for invasion of privacy after running amok and biting random people on the streets of Toledo. He seemed to target civilians with bright colored clothing, charging towards them as he emitted unholy honks and hisses. "Linda Patel - a heavily injured victim - was interviewed after the incident. "I was just strolling along with my new neon orange shirt, when suddenly, I heard an earsplitting honk from behind. before I could turn around, I felt the body of some heavy, wet creature landing on top of me, squawking loudly and nipping at my back. I twisted and turned, trying to de-attach him, but dat sucker clung on like a hitchhiker on an Ohio truck!" The police department received many calls about the incident, but when they arrived, the goose-man begun flapping his arms, and took off to the sky with ease. A search party was sent out to find him, and surely enough, he was caught within a few hours - wading through a pond with other geese. The search party was able to trap him quite easily, using bread to lure him into a cage. The cause for this behavior was quickly identified after 20 grams of Fun dip® were found in his bloodstream. "It'z for da berds, man", were his final words after before he was taken to prison.

JAIL SENTENCE EXPECTED TO LAST 10.333333 YEARS